S. 37. (Prov.) See chapter on incapacity and incompetency to vote. It would perhaps be an advantageous amendment, that the reviser of the lists should be required to state the short nature or at least general ground of the objection, and reason of his decision with reference to the right of petitioning, --as whether the claim or objection were allowed or disallowed by reason of property or competency, qualification or registration, and whether the determination was founded on proof or absence of proof, on fact or on law, all of which may be done in three words, thus--Freehold not proved, or disproved--House in Borough--unsound mind--Collector of Customs, c. c.--not registrable (rates not paid), or on any other of the several objections to competency enumerated, distinguishing the ground of qualification from that of registration. It is the duty of the reviser to retain on the lists s. Xlii. the names of all persons who have not been objected to by any persons other than overseers entitled to object to the retainer of names; and also the names of all persons against whom the objectors do not appear, or if the objections made have not been supported by proof, where the objector attends or appears to substantiate...
