HarperCollins Publishers Inc, United States, 2005. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Reprint. 198 x 127 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. In a book the San Francisco Chronicle called unclassifiably wise and a masterpiece, noted Harper s essayist Garret Keizer explores the paradox that we are human only by helping others- and all too human when we try to help. It is the primal cry, the first word in a want ad, the last word on the tool bar of a computer screen. A song by the Beatles, a prayer to the gods, the reason Uncle Sam is pointing at you. What we get by with a little of, what we could use a bit more of, what we were only trying to do when we were so grievously misunderstood. What we ll be perfectly fine without, thank you very much. It makes us human. It can make us suffer. It can make us insufferable. It can make all the difference in the world. It can fall short. Help is like the swinging door of human experience: I can help! we exclaim and go toddling into the sunshine; I was no help at all, we mutter and go shuffling to our graves. I m betting that the story can be happier than that . . . but I have a clearer idea now than I once did of what I m betting against. In his new book, Help, Garret Keizer raises the questions we ask everyday and in every relationship that matters to us. What does it mean to help? When does our help amount to hindrance? When are we getting less help-or more-than we actually want? When are we kidding ourselves in the name of helping (or of refusing to enable) someone else? Drawing from history, literature, firsthand...
